Trump will be in Arizona to speak at a rally for a friend and supporter named Trent Franks. The congressman has represented Arizona's 8th congressional district since 2012. Franks' district has a substantial share of socially conservative white voters, and he's probably best known for advocating a bill that would require women to undergo an ultrasound before they could have an abortion — among other things, the bill would have required that women sign the fetus's image in the ultrasound "for identification purposes." The Huffington Post's Amanda Terkel reports that the purpose of the event is to rally the "Christian evangelical community." The Planned Parenthood Action Fund says it will be sending three speakers to the event — Terry O'Neill, a senior vice president of the Planned Parenthood Action Fund; Abby Johnson, a former Planned Parenthood executive who once worked for a front group for the organization; and Marty Rouse, a former Planned Parenthood official. The rally starts at 5:15 p.m. local time.Video: Chrissy Teigen steals the show at Cavi's in L.A.
