What's New Autodesk has reorganized the user interface and the application functionality of AutoCAD 2016. We call the new user interface "new era of AutoCAD." The old user interface that has been used for decades is called the "legacy user interface." The "new era of AutoCAD" provides three levels of user experience. The first level of experience is the default level. In this level, you will work with a familiar and intuitive user interface. The second level of experience is provided for users who want to try something new or who work with complex drawings. In this level, you will work with a new user interface. To provide you with a choice of user interfaces and to get you familiar with the new user interface, we created three modes: The new user interface. The Legacy user interface.

AutoCAD's command line interface (CLI), described as "AutoLISP on the command line", allows programming of the commands and control of the program. AutoLISP scripts may be created to automate complex tasks. The AutoLISP programming language and AutoLISP compiler are part of the AutoLISP download. AutoLISP is suitable for automation of operating systems and complex tasks. AutoLISP comes pre-installed with AutoCAD. However, it is not used for almost all applications of AutoCAD. The "OLE Automation" Object Linking and Embedding (OLE/OLE Automation) automation technology allows software applications to access and manipulate AutoCAD directly from other applications. The "Microsoft Windows COM automation" technology lets a Windows program control AutoCAD. However, it has some major drawbacks and should be used only for very simple actions. "ActiveX" is a Microsoft technology for building and creating ActiveX components that can be integrated into a web browser and share the browser's interface, along with its elements. ActiveX can also be integrated into an AutoCAD application. CPA Magazine CPA Magazine is an American financial newsmagazine and website owned by Business Media, LLC, a subsidiary of Columbus-based business and financial media company Schurz Communications, which also publishes business-related magazines such as EDGE Media Network and CFO Magazine. The magazine was launched in September 1995, based on the launch of Schurz's CPA Magazine News Network in October 1994, with its first issue released on September 21, 1995. Formerly, the CPA News Network and now CPA Magazine is available free via a digital network of over 7,000 radio stations. On the radio, it airs at the top of each hour on 710 AM and 1580 AM in the Cleveland area. Its distribution footprint is nearly 400,000 weekly. The magazine offers daily and weekly news updates from tax and accounting industry leaders, leading companies, governments, academics and other subject matter experts. It is generally regarded as the best accounting publication, with much of the content focused on accounting fraud and how to protect against it. Schurz Communications chief executive officer John R. Freeman called CPA Magazine "the leading tax and accounting publication in the U.S." References External links Category:Magazines established in 1995 Category:Accounting magazines Category:Business media in the United States Category:Magazines published in Ohio Category:Media in Cleveland Category:American business magazinesQ: Equivalent of "single-quotes" with str_replace I'm trying to match a simple string. My version doesn't look to be equivalent to a preg_replace. Does someone know the proper syntax? ', $str); ?> This gives me Line 1|Line 2|Line 3 However I'm expecting something like Line 1Line 2Line 3 Or something equivalent. Thanks. A: You should not use str_replace() if you are not replacing a single character but several. Try the following instead. $str = 'Line 1|Line 2|Line 3'; $str = preg_replace('/(Line)/', '
