A long-awaited proposal for a major expansion of patient parking in northwest Calgary is expected to be introduced to council at the Oct. 30 meeting. The proposal is the result of months of negotiations between transit agency TransDev and the City of Calgary and the Edmonton-based company TELUS, which operates two parking lots at Westpine Meadows and Foothills hospitals.

TransDev says it's committed to finding a solution that works for patients, first responders and the community. "While we believe this is the best option for our customers and the City of Calgary, we recognize that not everyone agrees," said TransDev vice-president of services and operations Tanya Raymond. TELUS and the City of Calgary say there is value in having spaces for emergency workers. As well, TransDev needs a secure, reliable source of parking to make sure patients and their families are safe while waiting for their loved ones, Raymond said. The two sides have been in talks since last year, according to TransDev. "We understand parking for patients has an importance to customers and obviously to employees," said Raymond. "But we also believe there is a need for parking for first responders and other essential service providers. We're committed to finding a solution that works for all three." According to TransDev, there are more than 16,000 parking spaces at Westpine Meadows and the Stollery Foothills Hospital. The proposed four-lot addition would mean expanding the parking to 610 spaces and bring the total number to 1,575, according to a report tabled by city staff this week. The plan would see three new parking lots added to the current two. Walking trails would be built, and more light and power would be added to the lots, which would also allow for ADA-accessible parking. Access to residential streets would be improved and more visibility will be added, according to the report. The parking expansion could take place in 2020. The project would cost

"The touch-based combat was difficult at first. [...] As you progress, you'll unlock more enemies to fight and gain access to increasingly difficult enemy types. The more difficult fights require you to strategically deploy the orbs you earn throughout your campaign to customize your attacks in clever ways. Orbs also let you unlock new combo attacks, giving you more ways to customize and improve your combos. The cool thing about the combo system is that you can switch between a primary and secondary weapon by quickly tapping the corresponding button. [...] If you've never played a shmup before, this is a good one to start with, as you'll be learning the controls for a while before hitting the deep end. Once you learn the basics, you'll feel at home with Asteroids and can start cranking out high scores and swapping weapons." Asteroids achieves the rare and admirable feat of being almost incredibly difficult but also incredibly rewarding. The secret to its success is a laser-tight design that discourages you from rushing through the game. The combination of its infinitely fun (and easy-to-learn) combo system and its punishing difficulty make this one of the best games in the genre. Yes, there's a learning curve here, but this is a fast curve. An absolute must-own for any fan of first-person shooters or action games in general. 10/10 IGN "Everyone loves Asteroids, and in short, that's exactly why you need to play this game. [...] If you liked such great games as Super Mario Bros., Gh0st, Super Smash Bros., and Golden Axe, then Asteroids will be right up your alley. [...] Beyond that, the music and sound are also spot-on and quite appropriate for the time and era of the game. If you enjoy playing video games, then Asteroids is a blast to play. [...] I would recommend this to anyone who likes action and shooter games. Don't hesitate to try this one out." Asteroids is an addicting, expertly designed game that provides a perfect example of how good-looking nostalgia can serve as a form of entertainment. If you have fond memories of shmups, Asteroids is a no-brainer recommendation. 9/10 GamesRadar Game of the Week "I mean, this is a free-to-play game, so there's nothing stopping me from giving you a real game review and then simply taking the score from a popular site like GameSpot, or even giving it to you for free

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a communication system, and more particularly, to a transmission/reception apparatus and a transmission/reception method, which is applied to an orthogonal frequency division multiplexing (OFDM) system. 2. Description of the Related Art Recently, research and development relating to the multimedia have increased, and orthogonal frequency division multiplexing (OFDM) system communication as a standard system for transmitting the broadband communication information was adopted in digital TV broadcasting and next generation mobile communication system. The conventional OFDM system is used in mobile communication system with a simplified structure and performed in frequency selective fading environment, so that it can provide efficient communication even in poor channel environment. Further, the OFDM system transmits many subcarriers in parallel with one symbol, and on the time axis of OFDM symbol, many symbols constitute one OFDM channel. In this way, OFDM system has an advantage in that less intersymbol interference is introduced and lower PAPR distortion in next generation mobile communication system because high peak power is not generated for each symbol. Further, OFDM system has an advantage in that OFDM system communication can highly accurately perform spread spectrum communication due to the ability of utilizing the frequency band effectively. OFDM system is expected to become a next generation high speed/large data system. The OFDM system has various subcarriers in parallel with one symbol forming the symbol
